

We still have, however, a number of games to play beforehand, and a list of them is set out later in the programme.

Our game with Wycombe on Saturday last was a feast of good, fast and entertaining football with both sides giving of their utmost to play some really great stuff. The Wycombe officials expressed their appreciation of the game although they must have been disappointed to lose by five clear goals on a day when their players showed what they described as their best form of the season. This is a fine club who are a credit to our game and the Isthmian League. The only disappointment of the afternoon was the poor attendance of just over 1,000 spectators at a game the week following Wembley, and one wonders what the club and players have to do to get reasonable support. It was suggested by one of our visitors that if we would transfer to Wycombe there would be an average of 12,000 to support our team each week. Would be that we could be in their isolated
